

All about Fundamental Rights under Constitution for CLAT

Aparna Shukla · 30 Sep 2021

The Constitution of India provides for various fundamental rights to the citizens (and non-citizens) of the country. The topic is highly tested in the CLAT exam as well.

Introduction

This article will briefly discuss Fundamental Rights under the Constitution for CLAT and other Law entrance examinations. This topic is important for Legal Reasoning as well as Legal GK.

The Constitution of India is the Supreme Law and no other law can be in conflict with it. Fundamental Rights are enshrined in Part III of the Constitution of India i.e. from Article 12 to Article 35 of the Constitution of India. Although an action arises whenever any of these rights are violated but always remember that these rights are not absolute and can be subjected to the reasonable restriction if required. Part III of the Constitution is also referred to as the Magna Carta. Article 14, Article 19 and Article 21 are said to be the Golden Triangle of the Constitution.

Generally, in case of violation of any of the Fundamental Rights guaranteed in the constitution, the person affected can move to the Court for the enforcement of his rights under Article 32. If Emergency is proclaimed in the country, all the Fundamental stand suspended except the fundamental rights guaranteed under Article 20 and 21 of the Constitution of India.

The Fundamental rights are claimed against the State and its instrumentalities. The State has been defined under Article 12 of the Constitution and includes the all legislative and executive organs like the Union Government, the State Government, the State Legislature, the Parliament, all the local authorities and all other authorities under the control of the Government.

Earlier there were seven fundamental rights but after Right to Property (Article 31) was deleted as a fundamental right by 44th Amendment and now is a legal right under Article 300 A of the Constitution of India. Right to Education (Article 21 A) was added as the Fundamental Right by 86th Amendment Now, there are six fundamental rights in the Indian Constitution and they are as follows:
