Answers

1. C - That authorities act within the limits of power

Explanation - The doctrine of ultra vires is the backbone of administrative control. It ensures that every administrative authority acts strictly within the power granted by statute. Any act beyond that limit is void.

2. B - Procedural fairness in decision-making

Explanation - Natural justice is not about the correctness of the outcome but about how the decision is made. It guarantees fair procedure—absence of bias and opportunity of hearing—before power is exercised.

3. C - Right to legal representation in all cases

Explanation - Natural justice does not automatically include a right to a lawyer. Representation depends on statute, complexity of the matter, and potential prejudice.

4. C - Legality of the decision-making process

Explanation - Judicial review examines whether the authority acted lawfully, fairly, and within jurisdiction. Courts do not sit as appellate bodies over administrative wisdom or policy choices.

5. B - Consistent administrative practice

Explanation - Legitimate expectation arises when a public authority, by regular practice or promise, creates an expectation of continued benefit. It protects procedural fairness, not substantive entitlement.

6. B - Colourable exercise

Explanation - This doctrine prevents an authority from achieving indirectly what it cannot do directly. Even if an action appears lawful, it is invalid if done for an improper purpose.

7. C - Parent statute

Explanation - Delegated legislation has no independent existence. Its authority flows entirely from the enabling Act; if the parent statute falls, the delegated law collapses with it.

8. C - Legislative control

Explanation - “Laying” ensures that Parliament retains oversight over delegated legislation. It preserves democratic accountability over executive-made rules.

9. C - Authority lacks legal power to act

Explanation - A jurisdictional error strikes at the root of authority. If the power to act never existed, the decision is null regardless of procedural correctness.

10. C - Quo Warranto

Explanation - This writ protects the public from illegal usurpation of office. It asks “by what authority” a person holds a public position.

11. B - Means must be rationally connected to the end

Explanation - Proportionality requires a balance between objective and method. Even lawful goals cannot be pursued through excessive or oppressive means.

12. C - Doctrine of necessity

Explanation - Where no unbiased authority exists, necessity allows even a biased authority to decide. Otherwise, governance would collapse due to paralysis.

13. B - Power guided by law and reason

Explanation - Administrative discretion is not arbitrariness. It is structured freedom—choice exercised within legal bounds, for lawful purposes, and on rational grounds.

14. C - Rule against bias

Explanation - Public confidence in justice depends not only on fairness but its appearance. Even likelihood of bias vitiates decision-making.

15. C - Quash illegal orders

Explanation - Certiorari operates retrospectively. It nullifies decisions already made when they suffer from jurisdictional error, breach of natural justice, or error of law.
