- b) Allows courts to substitute their own decision
- c) Requires balancing between means and ends
- d) Is confined to fundamental rights cases

Q4. A post-decisional hearing is constitutionally acceptable mainly when:

- a) The statute expressly excludes natural justice
- b) Pre-decisional hearing is inconvenient
- c) Urgency makes prior hearing impracticable
- d) Administrative efficiency is prioritised

Q5. Which of the following best explains why “legitimate expectation” does not ordinarily create a substantive right?

- a) It is based on executive grace
- b) It protects procedure, not outcomes
- c) It applies only in policy matters
- d) It is excluded by statutory powers

Q6. An administrative order passed in bad faith is void because:

- a) It violates statutory procedure
- b) Motive is irrelevant in administrative law
- c) Power is exercised for an improper purpose
- d) It fails the test of proportionality

Q7. The doctrine of “colourable exercise of power” is conceptually closest to which idea?

- a) Ultra vires jurisdiction
- b) Abuse of discretion
- c) Procedural impropriety
- d) Strict liability

Q8. Which situation most clearly justifies exclusion of natural justice by necessary implication?

- a) Termination of a government contract
- b) Blacklisting of a contractor
- c) Preventive detention during public emergency
- d) Cancellation of licence for misconduct

Q9. The principle that “justice must not only be done but must also appear to be done” primarily underlies:

- a) Nemo iudex in causa sua
- b) Audi alteram partem
- c) Doctrine of bias
- d) Speaking order requirement

Q10. The requirement of a “reasoned order” in administrative law mainly serves to:

- a) Reduce judicial workload
- b) Ensure transparency and accountability
- c) Protect executive privilege
- d) Facilitate appellate hierarchy

Q11. Which of the following best distinguishes administrative discretion from administrative arbitrariness?

- a) Discretion is unguided; arbitrariness is guided
- b) Discretion is reasoned; arbitrariness is irrational
- c) Discretion excludes judicial review
- d) Arbitrariness requires mala fides

Q12. A statutory authority delegates its decision-making power to a private consultant without legislative sanction. This violates which principle?

- a) Delegatus non potest delegare
- b) Excessive delegation
- c) Sub-delegation with safeguards
- d) Policy delegation

Q13. Which ground of judicial review is most closely associated with violation of natural justice?

- a) Illegality
- b) Irrationality
- c) Procedural impropriety
- d) Proportionality

Q14. An administrative action based on irrelevant considerations is invalid because it:

- a) Lacks legislative competence
- b) Defeats the purpose of the statute
- c) Violates separation of powers
- d) Constitutes judicial overreach

Q15. The expansion of administrative law in India is best understood as a response to:

- a) Decline of parliamentary control

- d) Federal redistribution of powers

Answers

1. Correct Answer: C – Rule of law Explanation: Judicial review ensures that all administrative power is exercised according to law. The rule of law requires legality, non-arbitrariness, and accountability, forming the normative foundation of administrative law.
1. Correct Answer: B – Fettering of discretion Explanation: While guidelines are permissible, rigid application without considering individual cases amounts to abdication of discretion. Authorities must retain flexibility to exercise judgment.
1. Correct Answer: C – Requires balancing between means and ends Explanation: Proportionality examines whether administrative measures are suitable, necessary, and balanced in relation to the objective, unlike Wednesbury which focuses only on extreme irrationality.
1. Correct Answer: C – Urgency makes prior hearing impracticable Explanation: Courts allow post-decisional hearings only where immediate action is essential; convenience or efficiency alone cannot justify exclusion of prior hearing.
1. Correct Answer: B – It protects procedure, not outcomes Explanation: Legitimate expectation ensures fairness in decision-making, usually by requiring hearing or reasons, but does not guarantee fulfilment of the expectation.
1. Correct Answer: C – Power is exercised for an improper purpose Explanation: Mala fide action vitiates decisions because power is used for a purpose alien to the statute, striking at the legality of the action itself.
1. Correct Answer: B – Abuse of discretion Explanation: Colourable exercise involves using lawful power to achieve an unlawful end, which is a classic form of discretionary abuse.
1. Correct Answer: C – Preventive detention during public emergency Explanation: Courts recognise that prior hearing may defeat the very purpose of preventive action, making implied exclusion permissible in such cases.

1. Correct Answer: – Doctrine of bias Explanation: The principle ensures public confidence in decision-making by eliminating not only actual bias but also reasonable apprehension of bias.
1. Correct Answer: B – Ensure transparency and accountability Explanation: Reasoned orders allow affected parties to understand decisions and enable effective judicial review, reinforcing administrative accountability.
1. Correct Answer: B – Discretion is reasoned; arbitrariness is irrational Explanation: Discretion operates within legal bounds and reasons, whereas arbitrariness is unstructured, capricious, and constitutionally impermissible.
1. Correct Answer: A – Delegatus non potest delegare Explanation: A delegate cannot further delegate unless expressly authorised by statute. Unauthorised sub-delegation invalidates the decision.
1. Correct Answer: C – Procedural impropriety Explanation: Violation of natural justice is a procedural defect, forming a distinct ground of judicial review under administrative law.
1. Correct Answer: B – Defeats the purpose of the statute Explanation: Considering irrelevant factors distorts statutory intent and renders the decision legally flawed.
1. Correct Answer: B – Growth of welfare state functions Explanation: Expansion of state activity into socio-economic regulation necessitated legal control over administrative discretion, leading to the development of administrative law.
