Practice Paper on Sitting Arrangement QuestionsPassage - IBenjamin Franklin once said that "in this world nothing can be said to be certain, except death and taxes." While taxes are for most of us an unpleasant but necessary feature of everyday life, however, some people can avoid them : by employing the very best accountants, for example, or perhaps by living in parts of the world where even indirect taxation does not exist. The same cannot be said of death. There are no specialists to whom we can go who will show us ways of avoiding the inevitable when our time is up, for even the most skilled physicians can at best only postpone the moment of final reckoning. Nor is there anywhere in the world where death does not come calling. In short, death always triumphs in the end; indeed, for the sake of life itself, death has to win. It is because everyone eventually has to die and, therefore, at some times has to confront the reality of his or her mortality, that the mystery of death can fairly be said to represent the greatest of all the problems facing humanity. Unlike poverty or sickness, for example, no one, however fortunate, can hope to escape it. A fact less clearly understood by men and women is that death is not a problem that comes only at the end of our lives, whenever that may be. Rather, it is our attitude to death now specifically to our own death that fundamentally colors our whole attitude to life.1. How can life be made more meaningful?a) By understanding deathb) By not bothering about dyingc) By respecting life and deathd) By developing the right attitudes2. Why does Benjamin Franklin compare death and taxes?a) He wishes to evade tax.b) He thinks both are inevitable.c) Because all the other things are not worth talking about.d) Because he hates both.3. "The moment of final reckoning" meansa) a time of judgment b) the last day of lifec) after one's death d) at the end of something4. Why does the author say, "for the sake of live itself, death has to win"?a) Death wins as everyone dies one day or the other.b) Life and death are the two sides of the same coin.c) Only when something dies can new life begin.d) It is not clear.5. 'Eventually meansa) actuallyb) in course of timec) immediatelyd) at the end of a period of timeDirections (Q. 6 - 10): Study the following information and answer the following questions.Nine persons G, H, I, J, K, R, S, T and U are seated in a straight line facing north, with equal distance between each other but not necessarily in the same order. Only two people sit to the left of I. Only one person sits between 1 and U. H sits fourth to the right of R. R is not an immediate neighbour of U. Less than three people sit between R and U. The number of people sitting between I and U is half that between H and J. Only three people sit between K and T. K is not an immediate neighbour of J. Only two people sit between T and G6. In which of the given pairs of people is an odd number of people sitting between them?a) H, Tb) I, Hc) U, Rd) J, K7. Which of the following is true with respect to S as per the given arrangement?a) S is an immediate neighbour of U.b) None of the given options is truec) S sits at one of the extreme ends of the line.d) S sits second to the left of G.8. Who amongst the following sit exactly between T and G?a) I, Jb) H, Jc) R, Ud) H, S9. Who sits second to the left of J?a) Tb) No one as J sits at one of the extreme ends of the line.c) Id) C10.
