Answer Key with explanations

Question 1 – Option (b) is the correct answer.

Explanation – The writ of habeas corpus is issued to prevent the illegal detention of a person and to secure his/her release in such case, therefore, habeas corpus protects the “personal freedom” of a person.

Question 2 – Option (c) is the correct answer.

Explanation – Article 32 gives the power to issue writs to the Supreme Court and Article 139 allows Parliament to make law for the issuance of writs hence the correct answer is both (a) and (b).

Question 3 – Option (a) is the correct answer.

Explanation – Writ of mandamus relates to the performance of a legal duty by any public authority.

Question 4 – Option (c) is the correct answer.

Explanation – Article 139 of the Constitution allows the Indian Parliament to make law for conferring on the Supreme Court, the power to issue writs for enforcement of rights other than fundamental rights.

Question 5 – Option (b) is the correct answer.

Explanation – The Indian Constitution recognizes 5 kinds of writs namely, habeas corpus, mandamus, certiorari, quo warranto and prohibition.

Question 6 – Option (d) is the correct answer.

Explanation – X can seek a writ of certiorari to get the concerned order quashed by the High Court/Supreme Court.

Question 7 – Option (a) is the correct answer.

Explanation – A's wife can seek a writ of habeas corpus to secure A's release.

Question 8 – Option (c) is the correct answer.

Explanation – The general rule that writ cannot be issued in case of existence of an alternate remedy is subject to certain exceptions such as violation of principles of natural justice.

Question 9 – Option (a) is the correct answer.

Explanation – Writs can be sought only for the enforcement of fundamental rights. The remedy provided by concerned statute shall have to be availed for enforcement of contractual and statutory rights.

Question 10 – Option (b) is the correct answer.

Explanation – The given statement is false as a writ of prohibition is issued to prevent an inferior court from proceeding further with a case due to lack of jurisdiction while the writ of certiorari is issued to quash an order passed without jurisdiction.
